

Resource List for Creating Your Own Publishing House
Made Available by Dr. Roger Sapp, Overseer & Publisher,
All Nations Ministries & Publications

One of many free equipping files found on www.allnationsmin.org

References

The Complete Guide to Self-Publishing, 3rd Edition, 1994, Tom & Marilyn Ross, Writer's Digest Books, 1-800-289-0963, ISBN: 0-89879-646-6, $18.99, 408 pages.

Book Covers

Spirit-filled graphic artist. Experienced with book covers. He has done most of our popular books. Marcus Stallworth 214-403-6043 (cell), 972-709-1649 or 214-758-7333.

Booklet Covers We have used Printing For Less for several years and are pleased with the results. www.printforless.com We generally order 3000 or more color covers to keep the price down per cover. This makes the job into the $500 range. They are able to take the cover online uploaded in a variety of formats. Typically we use Microsoft Publisher because it is simpler to use than some of the other graphic programs.

Standard Printers

Morris Publishing. Good for smaller orders (short-runs) of books 200-1000 books. They have a published chart online of what each book will cost depending on number of pages and quantity ordered. www.morrispublishing.com 1-308-236-7888

Color House Graphics. We have found them excellent for larger orders. We have ordered 3000-6000 from them. They will bid on your project. 1-616-241-1916 www.colorhousegraphics.com

On-Demand Printers

Lulu prints one book at a time as they are ordered. No cost to author to have books available on www.lulu.com. Cost per book is higher but still may be the way to go if you don't want to invest much in the project. Also, you can make a downloadable version of your book on Lulu as well as having the printed version available. This is the popular PDF file and is read through a popular program, the Adobe Reader that can be downloaded at www.adobe.com.

Editors

Editors are available locally to you. Best to hire a local editor for ease of logistics. If you ask some of those locally to you who are publishing, they almost always can recommend an editor or two to you. Get them to bid on your project for "simple grammatical editing".

One word of warning

"Christian" Publishers and editors will sometimes imply or state that you have a good book but it has so many problems that are keeping it from being successful. They will try to sow insecurity into an author with the aim of acquiring a book for their own benefit. They might actually improve the book but the author might not benefit much from that improvement. What I generally do when a publisher or editor suggests that my books have problems, I ask them to list the problems for me to take a look at. If they are truly interested in helping me fix the problems, they will do this. If they are simply manipulating to obtain work for themselves or to acquire rights to the book, then they won't respond further. You would do better to acquire your own editor who is serving your interests and be your own publisher.